

Heather L. Brown, DMSc, PA-C, DFAAPA

Dr. Brown has been a clinically active PA for 23 years, practicing in Emergency and Urgent Care Medicine. She also has worked in PA academics for 12 years, as Principal Faculty and Director of Clinical Education. She is an advocate for the Deaf and works in that community to increase knowledge on medically related topics, teaching workshops to Deaf professionals and interpreters on infectious diseases, medical terminology, ethics and soft skills. She also works with students and medical professionals teaching about best practices when working with the Deaf. She has published numerous articles on clinical and legal topics, including the Americans with Disabilities Act and Emergency Medical Treatment and Labor Act. Heather has been working as an expert in consultations for medical-legal cases since 2013. She is currently a board member of the Academy of PAs in Legal Medicine. She has a bachelor's degree in Clinical Psychology from McDaniel College, a master's in health sciences from The George Washington University, and a Doctorate from The University of Lynchburg.
